The Buggy's Story – Chapter Two

Bryan Watson – a 17-year veteran of the National Hockey League – and wife Lindy opened Buggy's Pizza Restaurant and Sports Bar in 1983, after Bryan retired from a distinguished playing career. A member of the 1964-65 Stanley Cup Champion Montreal Canadiens, Bryan went on to play outstanding defense for the Pittsburgh Penguins and the Detroit Red Wings, ending his career in 1979 with the hometown Washington Capitals.

A fierce competitor on the ice and a renowned prankster, Watson led the NHL in penalty minutes for many years and was nicknamed "Bugsy" by Red Wing teammates Gordie Howe and Andy Bathgate during the 1966 Stanley Cup semi-finals when he drove both the opposition and his teammates crazy...for very different reasons!

As Alexandria's original sports bar and favorite pizza restaurant, Buggy's served delicious fare prepared on premises from the freshest ingredients for more than 30 years...and served the community equally by support of many charitable organizations.

Bryan retired in 2013 and sold Buggy's to long time friend and employee, Bart Paz, strengthening the restaurant's commitment to excellence in food and customer service.

Bart's dedication to quality, training, and cleanliness is evident from front door to the back of the house. He has expanded Buggy's menu by adding exciting new appetizers, sumptuous salads, gourmet pizzas and savory seafood pastas. In a short time, customers have come to expect delicious new menu items and seasonal treats from Buggy's kitchen.

Change...like everything else at Buggy's...is good. So join us for the next 30 years. Watch for special events and special deals.

And have a great time, a delicious meal and lots of fun browsing through our prized collection of sports memorabilia on the walls upstairs.
